

League Council Session Assured for Considering Italo-Ethiopian Crisis

Italy Willing to Attend Meeting If Discussions are Limited to Ways of Helping Conciliation Commission Only.

PREPARING FOR WAR

Emperor Declares Ethiopia Desires Peaceful Settlement of Dispute by Extraordinary Council.

(By The Associated Press) Definite consideration of the Italo-Ethiopian crisis by the council of the League of Nations was assured today when the league secretariat issued a call for an extraordinary council session to be held July 31.

The action followed receipt of a note from Italy which, sources at Rome said, expressed Italy's willingness to attend such a session provided it was limited in its discussions to ways and means of forwarding the work of the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission.

In London the "Law Times" urged a League of Nations mandate upon Great Britain to close the Suez Canal to Italian warships but this was dismissed in informed circles as unlikely because of treaty obligations to keep the canal open.

Another move in Italy's preparedness for possible war in Ethiopia was seen in the disclosure from Rome that the Italian East African colony of Eritrea had been placed under virtual martial law.

To Convoke Session Geneva, July 27 (AP)—League of Nations officials announced today that the secretariat, after a consultation with Maxime Litvinoff, president of the council, had decided to convoke an extraordinary session of the council July 31 to deal with the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

These officials said that Italy, in replying to a query as to what date was most acceptable for the session, refrained from stating definitely whether her representatives would attend the session, merely expressing indifference as to the date.

Rome dispatches today said that the Italian government had telegraphed the League expressing Italy's willingness to attend the council session with the provision that the council limit its discussion to ways and means of forwarding the work of the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission.

The League version of the reply was that Italy was awaiting a response from Ethiopia to the last Italian note in which Rome urged Addis Ababa not to insist upon discussions of territorial questions during the arbitration proceedings.

League circles this afternoon had the impression that Italy will insist upon restriction of the council's activities to questions of conciliation and arbitration and probably will oppose any broad investigation of the dispute.

Wants Peaceful Settlement. Addis Ababa, July 27 (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie proclaimed Ethiopia's desire for a peaceful settlement of her dispute with Italy in a written statement today and declared that Ethiopia confidently awaited a decision of the League of Nations.

The "King of Kings and conqueror of Lion of Judah" declared that it was up to the league itself to decide whether one member of the body could violate the territorial integrity of another state.

With a session of the league council called for July 31, the emperor said: "On the occasion of the assembly of the council we declare we are seeking a peaceful settlement."

The essential basis of the dispute is in the interpretation of the Italo-Ethiopian treaty of 1908, referring to the Somali frontiers. The covenant of the league considers arbitration necessary in a dispute over the interpretation of the treaty.

"Italy and Ethiopia are members of the league. Besides, we have a friendship treaty of 1928. Consequently arbitration must settle the quarrel."

"Italy make arbitration impossible because she desires to exclude the frontier treaty and she designated two Italian arbitrators while the Ethiopian arbitrators were neutral personalities."

Won't Use The Privilege. Washington, July 27 (AP)—King Dry, Senator William H. King (D-Utah), has been empowered to mix drinks behind District of Columbia bars—but he won't use the privilege. Learning today of his election to honorary membership in a Washington bartenders' union, King was incredulous at first, then laughed.

"It's just a joke, I suppose, or it may be because I am chairman of the Senate District Committee. In any event," he said with a chuckle, "I'll not avail myself of the opportunity."

Improved Retail Trade. Washington, July 27 (AP)—Improved retail trade throughout the country for the week ended July 24, compared with the same period last year, was reported today by the commerce department. Contrary to the usual seasonal trend, retail automobile sales increased from May to June this year.

BOY'S HEAD CUT WHEN CAR HE WAS IN STOPPED QUICKLY

Joseph Woods, 11, of 52 Hunter street, was treated for cuts on the head this morning at the Kingston Hospital. The boy was riding with his father, James Woods, and at the corner of Water and McEster streets, a car in front of the Woods' car stopped suddenly. Mr. Woods applied his brakes bringing his car to a quick stop to avoid an accident and as he did so the boy, who was sitting alongside of his father, was thrown against the windshield.

Located at Monticello. Beverly, Mass., July 27 (AP)—Agnes Crozier, 16, and Cora Capron, 18, Beverly High School girls missing since February, have been located, police reported today at Monticello, N. Y., working as waitresses. Their fathers and Chief of Police Joseph C. Gurney left for New York to bring them home.

Washington, July 27 (AP)—The Senate Lobby Committee is investigating the private finances of Representative Patton (D-Tex)—at Patton's invitation. The inquiry results from testimony that out of his first $3,100 of government salary the congressman invested $3,000 in United States bonds.

At the same time the committee is using all of its resources to untangle a conflicting story about a mysterious newspaper-wrapped package. One witness said he had seen Patton carry such a box from the hotel room of John W. Carpenter, Texas Power and Electric president, the day before the congressman voted against a utility bill provision calling for compulsory dissolution of certain holding companies.

This box was described by E. V. Sellers, a friend of Patton's, after both Patton and Carpenter had denied that the congressman visited the hotel that day. Sellers said he was certain of the date, and said he did not believe the package was a box of cigars.

The picturesque congressman—who told the committee his friends call him "Cousin Nat"—opened his accounts of the committee investigators, denying he had done anything wrong.

"I hope I might be struck dead here if that is not the truth and the whole expose of the business," he shouted as he completed his story of accepting a box of cigars from the power company official's son.

Carpenter issued a statement declaring that "any insinuation or inference that I ever gave Mr. Patton anything of value is baseless and false."

"I have never given nor instigated the giving to Mr. Patton of anything of any kind except the box of cigars given him by my son," Carpenter said.

He said he and his family were away on a motor trip on the date mentioned by Sellers, and none of us saw Mr. Patton at any time on that day.

Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives fighting the Roosevelt utility bill, charged in a statement that the lobby committee was engaging in a campaign of "terrorism" and "character assassination" to silence protesters over the bill and push it through.

Utility Bill Delayed. While the lobby committee pushed ahead with its inquiry, the utility bill was still indefinitely delayed by a deadlock between congressional conferees over the admission of administration advisors into the negotiations.

Three of the house conferees have refused to sit as long as the senators insist upon having Ben Cohen, reputed author of the bill, participate in the deliberations.

One of the House men, Representative Huddleston (D-Ala.) said "it's fundamental to our system of government that the legislative branch should be permitted to function without outside influence from the executive."

On the other hand, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) heading the senate conferees, said the action of the House group was "a smoke screen to hide their effort to defeat any legislation on utilities this session."

Members of the Senate lobby committee said they would call to the stand Norris Shook, nephew of representative Patton, who was quoted by Sellers as saying "Hell, that wasn't clear" that the congressman carried from Carpenter's room.

Seeking to determine how Patton could afford to invest the $2,000 sum, committee members asked him yesterday about his living expenses.

Patton said he did not think it cost him $200 a month to support his wife and two children at the hotel where he resided, but said he would have to confer with his wife before he was sure.

He said he had $400 when he came to Washington, and had also received about $200 in mileage expenses in addition to his salary.

Individual Actions In Liberals Now Hope To Germany Against Jewry Make Changes In Bank Are 'Forbidden' by Nazi Measure In Conference

Police Chief Count Von Helldorf Announces that the State Will Conduct Its Own Anti-Semitic Drive.

POLICE HINDERED

Participants In Individual Actions Liable to Punishment As Smuggling Charges Resume.

Berlin, July 27 (AP)—Count Von Helldorf, Nazi police chief of Berlin, announced today that the state itself would conduct its fight against Jewry and that individual actions against Jews were "forbidden."

Von Helldorf's announcement gave no clue as to the measures the Nazis planned in continuing their anti-Semitic drive, except that it would be conducted in "another way."

In a decree which the police chief issued "in agreement with the party offices," he said:

"The fact has been recently ascertained that in a few cases (Nazis) party members have allowed themselves to be led astray by provocateurs to participate in anti-Semitic demonstrations."

"The state party has again and again emphasized that individual actions are prohibited. These single actions include painting and damaging name plates, shop windows, etc. etc."

"It is noticeable that in individual cases the police are hindered from doing their duty by provocateurs mentioning my name. The fight against Jewry will be conducted by the state Nazi movement in another way."

"Anyone participating in individual prohibited actions puts himself outside of the state party and is liable to punishment."

"Blood Purge" Pressaged. While whispered alarms continued throughout the Reich to the effect that the present Nazi drive against Jewry was a "blood purge," newspapers banned reports from New York of an alleged "Communist attack" against the steamship Bremen.

Vivid details of the tearing down of the German flag were presented readers under lurid headlines but there was no official comment on the incident.

The courts today resumed their series of trials against "money smugglers" Catholic monks and nuns with a sixth case.

Four nuns of the "Congregation of the Holy Karl Borromaeus" faced judges and possibly heavy punishment if found guilty of smuggling 225,000 marks (approximately $90,000) into the Netherlands.

They were the general vicar of the congregation, Luitgardis Kneppke, her successor, Felicitas Poritz, the nuns, Rosalie Bell, and her successor, Rosa Voelkel. All were charged with violation of Germany's exchange laws.

They were accused of having carried money over the Netherlands border through the German Banker Hofius, who was described in the indictment as "the instigator of Catholic money smuggling."

The vicar Kneppke was charged additionally with having smuggled 13,000 marks (about $5,200) into Czechoslovakia for the support of the Czech branch of the congregation.

Although the week-end gave pause to activities which have alarmed Catholics, Jews and members of the Steel Helmet organization during the past week, the whispers of more trouble coming continued as Jews redited the activities of Hans Hinkel and Julius Streicher.

Bullet Wounds Fatal. New York, July 27 (AP)—Ramon Munoz-Tobar (CQ), 52, shot down with his niece, Margaret Alfano, 28, as they knelt at the coffin of her father in an uptown funeral parlor, died last night at Knickerbocker Hospital. Miss Alfano told police they were shot by Alfred Ortiz, 25, a former business partner of her father. Both Miss Alfano and Munoz-Tobar, who was a private secretary for the Venezuelan consul general here, suffered abdominal wounds yesterday when their assailant drew a pistol from a cardboard box and fired three times. He escaped.

Escapes Injury. Newburgh, N. Y., July 27 (AP)—Public Service Commissioner George R. Lunn has come safely through his second automobile accident in several years. His friends learned today that the car in which the commissioner was riding yesterday collided on a straight stretch of road with a car driven by Ernest Lee of Owego, its owner. The commissioner, Mrs. Lunn and their chauffeur all escaped injury. Several years ago the former lieutenant-governor was seriously injured when his car hit the pillars of a railroad underpass in Albany. He was in a hospital for several months.

The machine, identified from its license plates, is owned by Norman C. Karpis, a railroad employee here. He said he found it no longer in his name. He was driving through Cleveland, a citizen mistook one of the men for Karpis.

UTILITIES BILL

Utilities Deadlocked Because House Conferees Refuse to Permit Experts to Sit In.

Washington, July 27 (AP)—Congress, with the banking bill ready to hear distillers institute representatives on the new alcohol administration bill.

The private finances of Representative Patton (D. Tex.) who bought $3,000 in government bonds during a period when his government salary totaled $3,100, were under the scrutiny of a Senate lobby committee.

The congressman himself yesterday invited the examination of his accounts, in denying any wrongdoing in connection with power companies' effort to defeat legislation which would abolish certain holding companies.

One witness testified he saw Patton carry a paper-wrapped box from the apartment of John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power and Light Company, the day before the Texas voted against the abolition clause. Patton and Carpenter both emphatically denied this.

Meanwhile the conference on the Wheeler-Rayburn utilities bill remained deadlocked because House conferees refused to permit administration experts to sit in on the sessions. A meeting was called off yesterday and no new date set. There were indications that some House liberals might try to have new conferees appointed.

The omnibus banking bill sped through the Senate with none of the long debates and delays which marked action on the AAA amendment. The bill remained unchanged from the form in which it was brought to the floor after being revamped by Senator Glass (D. Va.) and a sub-committee.

A proposal for a government-owned Central Bank, offered by Senator Nye (R-N. D.), which was backed by Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, went down to defeat, 59 to 10. This amendment would have substituted the Central Bank for the credit control feature of the bill, which is a major point of difference in the measures as passed by the two chambers.

Some of the Democratic legislators expressed dissatisfaction with the new, tentative tax measure, which is expected to raise an additional $245,000,000 to $253,000,000 annually. They seek to apply new, increased income taxes to those with incomes of between $100,000 and $150,000 a year. Under the present plan this group would not be affected by the increase. Other legislators, however, saw failure ahead for the move to drop the bracket to include incomes over $100,000.

This assured peace in the soft coal fields for seven more weeks. Union leaders had threatened to call a strike August 1 unless a new contract was forthcoming.

Junior High School Not Necessary, Says Beeres Who Favors An Addition

OTHER MATTERS

Superintendent Van Ingen Files Report on Summer School and Board Adjourns Until Sept. 6.

New York, July 27 (AP)—Communists ripped the German flag, with Nazi swastika superimposed, from the bow of the liner Bremen early today, hurled it into the swirling Hudson, and precipitated a bruising fight between nearly 2,000 of their own number and 375 policemen.

One man was shot, two policemen were severely injured, scores of other participants in the battle were cut and bruised.

Except for skirmishes on the bow of the liner and in the tourist class section, most of the fighting took place in the street in front of the pier from which the boat sailed a half hour late at 12:30 a. m.

The Communists later choked the street in front of the West 47th street police station, where they demanded release of their fellows arrested in the earlier fighting, and brought on a second battle in which other citizens, awakened from their slumbers, joined the police.

Buckets of water were poured from upstairs windows as the Communists chanted: "Free the arrested seamen!" Household articles and other missiles were hurled into the street. Reserve policemen, summoned from their beds, charged with nightsticks and blackjacks. The Communists sought the shelter of doorways.

The Communists were massed on the river front between West 44th street and West 46th street a half hour before the Bremen was scheduled to sail. They sang the Internationale and shouted "Down with Hitler!" and "Free Thaelman."

Schultz Lieutenant Ordered to Jail When He Refuses to Testify

Malone, N. Y., July 27 (AP)—Rocco Di Larmi, Schultz lieutenant, defiantly refused to testify against Arthur (Dutch) Schultz, Flegenheimer in federal court today, and Judge Frederick H. Bryant ordered him sent back to jail.

"I direct that the witness be sent back to jail until he purges himself of contempt," said Judge Bryant.

James Noonan, who is defending Schultz, former Bronx beer runner, on income tax evasion charges, called the judge's attention to the fact he ordered the "defendants," instead of the witness, to jail.

Judge Bryant corrected himself. Di Larmi, small, dark and neatly dressed, was a surly witness. Just as his associate, "Bo" Weinberg, had done, Di Larmi read a statement in which he said he would refuse to testify concerning a bank account he maintained jointly with Schultz on the ground he did not want to incriminate himself.

"I want to make a statement," he told the court, fumbling in his pocket.

This was after John H. Burke, Jr., assistant district attorney, asked him when he was last employed. Judge Bryant ordered him to answer the question. Di Larmi then said he had not been employed for three years.

"What was your occupation in 1929?"

"I refuse to answer," said the witness.

"I direct that you answer the question," said Judge Bryant. Di Larmi then said, "I can't remember."

"Where was your place of business?" persisted Burke.

"I had no place."

"How did you sustain yourself in 1929?"

"I refuse to answer."

"I direct that you answer," said the court. There was a pause, and the witness finally turned to the court and said:

"Your honor, I need to gamble."

"Where did you conduct your gambling?" Burke questioned.

"I played golf," Di Larmi explained. "I played golf for so much a hole."

"Do you know Joseph Harmon?" "Joseph Harmon" was an alias used by Schultz.

With the building committee of the Board of Education holding to its former recommendation that two junior high schools be erected in Kingston to relieve the congestion not only at the high school but also at several of the grade schools and President Beeres taking the stand that it is not necessary to erect any junior high school building but that the addition of another floor to the present high school building would suffice, the building committee was authorized by the board to seek the advice of architects and make a comparative study of the two plans, taking into consideration the fact that if another floor is added to the high school building that additions will have to be erected at two or three of the grade schools.

After a lengthy discussion of the school situation in Kingston at the meeting of the board Friday evening, at which various opinions were expressed, it was Trustee Katz who moved that in order to bring the matter to a head and enable the board to act in an intelligent manner comparative figures be secured. The committee was authorized to spend a small sum if necessary in making this comparative cost survey.

Under Mr. Katz's plan figures will be secured on the cost of an addition or the addition of another story to house 400 students in the present building and also the cost of one central junior high school and the cost of two junior high schools. Since an addition to the present high school building will not relieve the congestion in the grade schools the committee was instructed to take that fact in consideration and learn how much the several additions to the grade schools will require. By a comparison of the two ideas Mr. Katz said the board would be better able to arrive at the best and most economical plan for the taxpayers and also determine which plan would ultimately be the cheapest.

Majority Favors Two New Schools. Opinions as to the two ideas were expressed by several members of the board and the majority of the members present spoke in favor of the plan recommended by the Building Committee last March, that plan was to erect two junior high schools in the city. One school would be erected uptown and one below the West Shore. The committee at that time explained that this would relieve the congestion in the high school and also take care of the grade schools for a long time to come without the expenditure of more money for additions. If this work is done now 45 per cent of the money will be derived from Federal funds at no cost to the local taxpayers.

The discussion came up when the Building Committee submitted a summary of the steps thus far taken in the junior high school survey which has been made in conjunction with the State Department of Education. No written report has been received as yet from the state and several members expressed their opinion that it was not the intent of the State Department to submit such a written report although one has been suggested. Following the survey here in conference with Dr. William Wilson of the State Department and the result of the state's survey was laid before the board. At that time no definite recommendation was made by the state official but suggestions were made and after the board had been given the facts it was left to determine just what means of relief were best.

Dr. Wilson stated that the present high school building which houses about 1,000 students was equipped to care for 1,400. There is space enough in the building to take care of 1,500 but the building is so cut up that this space is not now available and only by use of the basement could the extra care for 1,900.

One member of the board expressed an opinion that the basement was not suitable for class rooms since it had a concrete floor and when built it had been designed as lunch rooms, bicycle rooms, janitor's rooms, etc.

Other rooms are too large for proper class rooms as some take from 40 to 50 students and this number the department considers too many for proper supervision of one teacher.

Report of Survey. The report of the school survey submitted was as follows:

To the Board of Education. At the suggestion of the building committee, I am submitting a summary of steps pertaining to the Survey of the Kingston Schools.

February 27, 1935.—At meeting of Board of Education, communications received from Junior High School were forwarded from Common Council, Kingston.

Middletown Junior League Horse Show

Richard C. Heather

Announcement was made Thursday of the reorganization of the Middletown Junior League Horse Show, the name of which has been changed to Middletown-Goshen Horse Show, Inc. with Mrs. W. R. Batcheller, president; Mrs. Charles M. Horton and Richard C. Heather, vice presidents, and Charles E. Koons, secretary and treasurer.

The Middletown Junior League Horse Show was organized three years ago to supplement the financing of the Junior League's welfare and charity work in Middletown. The inaugural horse show, held at the Orange County Fair Grounds, Saturday afternoon, September 19, 1932, was followed by an all day Saturday show at the Fair Grounds, September 9, 1933, and by a two day Friday and Saturday show at the historic track at Goshen, N. Y., September 14 and 15, last year.

It was originally planned to hold the Junior League Horse Show each year at the Orange County Fair Grounds. Last year, however, it became apparent that more adequate exhibition and stabling facilities would be required than it was possible to develop at the Fair Grounds. Through the generosity of E. Roland Harriman, a model horse show ring, approximately 335 by 150 feet, with an outside course for showing hunters, was constructed within the race track enclosure at the Historic Track at Goshen, which, with grandstand, ample parking space, 200 large permanent box stalls, and other facilities at the Historic Track, provided an ideal setting, second to none on the Eastern Horse Show Circuit.

Development of the show from a local Saturday afternoon affair to a full two day show, with novice to championship stake classes for three and five-gaited saddle horses, saddle ponies, hunters, jumpers, and children's horsemanship competitions, necessitated a permanent management organization.

In addition to incorporating Richard C. Heather of Rye, N. Y., has been added to the personnel of the organization as vice president. Mr. Heather is a veteran exhibitor, has been prominent as a judge of saddle horses and children's horsemanship classes for a number of years, and was chairman of the feature committee of the 1934 National Horse Show, but perhaps is best known in the horse show world as chairman of the popular Country Club Horse Show, held each year at the Westchester Country Club at Rye, N. Y. Mr. Heather, with his wealth of horse show organization experience, and extensive acquaintance with horse show exhibitors, will be an active participant in the management of the Middletown-Goshen Horse Show.

With the determination of its sponsors to maintain the tradition of Goshen for friendly competition, genuine sportsmanship and wholehearted hospitality, the Middletown-Goshen Horse Show will be a welcomed addition to the itinerary of horse show devotees and exhibitors.

The fourth annual show will be held this year at the Historic Track at Goshen, N. Y., on September 6 and 7.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Gales Holcombe of Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Wilburn of Saugerties are members of the general committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Miller of Jefferson avenue entertained at dinner on Thursday evening at the Twaalfakill Club.

Mrs. Henry DeWitt and her daughter, Mrs. Richard Luff, formerly of this city, expect to arrive in Kingston next Sunday. Mrs. De-Witt will stay at the Huntington during her visit, while Mrs. Luff will be the guest of Miss Julia Burgevin, who is also returning to Kingston.

Games were played and sandwiches, cake, fruit punch, ice cream and cake were served. The following guests were present: Janet Schoonmaker, Janet Wier, Janet Kellerman, Barbara Frier, Mary Matthews, Marilyn Culver, Louise Guttridge, Shirley Meade, Beverly Honestel, Theodora Kenny and Gertrude Kenny. Mrs. Wood was assisted in entertaining by Miss Rosamond Burger.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Bailey of West New York, N. J., formerly of this city, have returned to their home after spending a few weeks in this city visiting relatives and friends. Mr. Bailey is employed by the government in the R. M. S. and at present is stationed at the West Side Transfer Office, Morgan Annex, New York city.

Apes and Men
There is almost as much difference between the ordinary person and the true genius as between the highest apes and the lowest man. If the apes could reason extensively most of the normal conduct of average people would seem to them abnormal, indeed insane. So, it is with genius—almost anything they do is bound to be extraordinary and often seems to us eccentric, odd, peculiar, and even insane.—Detroit News.

FEMINE BAR FLIES

The problem of women in bars is not a pleasant one, but is actually under serious discussion and can hardly be ignored. It came frankly into public notice at a recent conference in St. Louis. The conferees consisted of reformers and saloonkeepers. When two such groups join hands, outsiders may assume that it is a real problem. It is a question of "women bar flies." There never was any such problem in pre-prohibition days except with women already beyond the social pale of society. But these are decent women. The problem is to protect them from the contaminating influence of barrooms, and at the same time to protect men—their husbands, sons, fathers, and friends—from the confusion and embarrassment that come from such promiscuous gatherings. Also, let it not be overlooked, to protect the saloonkeepers in maintaining the rights and ethics of their profession. Whatever outsiders may think, insiders are protesting seriously. The city excise commissioner of St. Louis wants the city aldermen to prohibit the sale of liquor to women in barrooms. He says:

The new saloon is just the old saloon hiding behind women's skirts. Mothers used to have to worry over the sobriety of their sons. Now they are faced with a greater problem, the sobriety of their daughters. As for the saloonkeepers, they say:

Women patrons are a menace to business. They're moochers. They buy one drink and then expect the men at the bar to buy the rest. That drives the men into buying package liquor and taking it home to drink in peace.

The president of the St. Louis Federation of Women's Clubs would banish women from barrooms "to protect them for their own good." A prominent social leader, however, argues that women denied the front door will go around to the back door, or to a speakeasy or beer flat. "You can't keep the wrong kind of women out, and so you might as well let the right kind of women in." Anyone can see how big a problem this is fast becoming, and what a brawl there is likely to be about it.

THE DYING WALKATHON

Little did that old Greek runner know what he was getting into when he ran from Marathon to Athens with the news of the Hellenic victory over the Persians, and thereby started the Marathon race. He could not have foreseen that his athletic feat, continued through the centuries as a feature of the Olympic Games, would degenerate after more than 2,000 years into this anticlimax of all American athletic contests, the "walkathon."

This last phase started, as post-war observers with long memories may recall, as a dancing endurance contest. For years now all pretense of dancing has vanished. All that remains is the pitiful and disgusting spectacle of weary couples shuffling around a dance floor as slowly as possible, their motion barely discernible most of the time, hanging onto each other for support, with eyes and bodies drooping, almost dead for sleep. They have degenerated into creptathons and sleepathons.

Fortunately, of late, many cities have forbidden these performances, and others, looking with the same disapproval, have started closing them. In one town the police recently shut off a walkathon that had dragged on for 51 days. Neighbors were complaining. Everybody should have been complaining about this sort of thing years ago. Stopping such revolting spectacles, however, is easier than to explain the psychology of people who have kept them alive by patronizing them.

A NONPOLITICAL COURT

The argument of Senator Borah against any political party going to the Supreme Court for a presidential candidate, now or at any other time, is unanswerable. He suggests the "chagrin and humiliation which must come to a judge when singled out for political advancement because of the solemn discharge of his duty of a justice of the Supreme Court," and adds:

But there is something more involved than this. It is not only a suggestion of political recompense for deciding questions of law in a particular way, but it is a subtle suggestion to all members of the court that in rendering opinions on constitutional law they should keep in mind not only the law, but also the rewards which await those who—while interpreting the Constitution—also interpret popular sentiment. It is not only indispensable to the worth and dignity of the court that it be in fact free from party bias, but also that the people believe it to be free from party bias.

There could be no more effective way to destroy the Constitution than to make the Supreme Court a political body instead of a strictly judicial tribunal above faction and party.

NO ROCKING CHAIRS

In takes the older generation by surprise to learn from the furniture dealers recently in convention in Chicago that the day of the rocking chair is practically over. As a matter of fact, these authorities maintain there are millions of American children today who do not even know what a rocking chair is, for they have never seen one.

Perhaps that is just as well. Too many American children in times past got bumps on their noses, if not more serious injury, from standing in rocking chairs that threw them down. Children's chairs at least should stand squarely on four sturdy legs.

That Body of Yours

BY James W. Barton, M. D.
 (Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

WEAK MUSCULAR HEART

As you know the heart is made up entirely of muscle and this muscle is supplied with nerves which cause it to contract or squeeze out the blood into blood vessels which carry some of the blood to the lungs to be purified and the rest of it to all parts of the body to give nourishment and carry wastes away from all the tissues of the body. The power of the stroke behind this muscular pump (the heart) must be strong enough to push the blood away and bring it back again. Formerly the heart was thought to have some suction or drawing power which brought the blood back, but it is really the squeezing first stroke that does all the work.

Now when the heart begins to lose some of its power there are certain symptoms—shortness of breath, swelling of the feet, or both—which tell the patient and doctor just what is wrong. However, there are other symptoms due to lack of power (or compensation) of the heart which the patient does not think have anything to do with the heart.

Drs. D. Branstetter and I. Fainita, Berlin, tell us that loss of appetite, indigestion, coated tongue, feeling of fullness after meals, heartburn, belching up of gas in the abdomen, and constipation may be due to lack of muscular power of the heart. The general opinion naturally is that slowness or stasis in the liver, stomach, and intestines is the cause of these "digestion" symptoms.

These physicians studied 22 cases where these symptoms existed in patients with weak muscular hearts. They examined particularly the action of the stomach and liver, by means of the X-ray and other tests. The patients were treated by means of rest, and digitalis (a heart stimulant) for a number of days, and then the lining of the stomach was examined by the X-ray. Also some of the stomach juice was withdrawn to find out the activity of the stomach, and the activity of the liver was learned by examination of the blood and the urine.

The X-ray of the stomach revealed a swollen or inflamed condition of the lining. The liver was failing to do its work properly in over 80 per cent of the cases.

Thus these indigestion symptoms mentioned above were due to "slowness" or stasis of the stomach and liver, and this slowness in turn was due to the weak muscular power of the heart. In these cases then rest and a heart stimulant is the proper treatment in order to prevent the stasis rather than treatment for the stomach and liver.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: Laurie and Rex Moore decided to give up their manhoods as men and wife, consequently undertaking for mutual purpose, but now a danger to them both. Rex has left for the country to prepare to be the Pacific; Laurie continues to work for Rex Moore. But she has given him a hint that perhaps some day she and Rex will be "divorced" and Rex has already told Laurie that he loves her.

Chapter 34

SAFE OFFER

"LAURIE," said Albery, and a wave of heat came into his voice from the flame of desire that was consuming him. "You know I love you. Don't pretend I am glad. I can't tell you how glad I am. You must break with him at once. What's the good of waiting? Let him get on with his job. I'll still be behind him, for your sake. But you mustn't work any more. You must let me look after you."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Albery!" she faltered. "But I would much rather work. I love my work. I should hate to have nothing to do."

"You will have everything to do—what all women love to do, especially when they are loved by a man as I love you. You shall have everything in the world, all the pretty clothes and jewels you want. We will travel. You shall have a villa in the South, an apartment in Paris or Rome—where you like. Whatever you want, will be my joy to give you."

She gazed at him in speechless amazement. "Mr. Albery, are you asking me to marry you?"

He gave her a look that baffled her; it was so full of some suggestion that she could not grasp.

"My dear girl, I'm not a marrying man. But I will give you a position in which you will be honored and respected by everyone you meet."

She gave a cry and sprang from her chair. Before he could stop her she was at the door. She clung to the handle and flung swift, withering words at him, her eyes blazing.

"How dare you insult me like that? I won't stay here another minute. I'm going and I'm never coming back. I'll never set foot in this building again."

Her passion of outraged fury was exhausted. She opened the door with difficulty, white to the lips, and went out of the room, leaving Albery staring after her with uncomprehending, but baffled and cruel and merciless eyes.

BUT the next day, about six o'clock in the afternoon, Albery's car pulled up to the little tumble-down house in Westminster where his ex-secretary lived.

It happened that the old and rheumatic landlady was standing at the front door, having just parted from a visitor.

"Is Mrs. Rex Moore at home?" Albery asked her.

Seeing a grand gentleman and a grand car, and knowing that Mrs. Moore had lately been mixed up with all sorts of people, the landlady directed him upstairs.

"Right at the top. You'll find Mrs. Moore. I'm afraid it's a bit of a climb."

So it was that Albery came upon Laurie, unexpectedly and unannounced, when, after knocking at the first door, he found her in her private sitting room.

New York Fur-Bearers.

From the jaws of history, man has utilized the skins of animals for protection; and Chinese merchants, even thousands of years ago, became wealthy through fur-trading.

A new Cornell bulletin says New York farmers should produce more fur as well as poultry, vegetables, fruit, or beef. It tells what part the fur-bearers have in the agriculture of the state. The bulletin may prove a stepping-stone to many.

JACK MORANZ WILL SKETCH LEADING CITIZENS

Thousands of leaders in American life have been sketched by this artist. His work brings pointedly to the minds of those who see it the personality of the men he reproduces as well as their thought and action through terse messages included to explain each figure in a drawing.

Colonel Jack Moran says any city is only as great as its well known as its leading men. He calls his drawings "pictorial biographies of citizens whose activities and achievements have become a part of the fabric of the community as well as the means of bringing a city or town into national prominence.

Through his eyes the years are rolled back and forth. Ambitions of men are disclosed in contrast with what they have accomplished if a contrasting feature is found. He goes into the office and homes of business and professional men to sketch them at their leisure and to get the background which makes each picture the brief synopsis of a life.

Colonel Jack Moran has sought for and found in many cities the men who have made them. Readers are advised not to miss pictures in which the artist calls "Ulster's Gallery of Achievement."

Girl Sketches Surgery Work to Help Science Cincinnati, Ohio.—A girl who decided early in life she did not want to be an artist has grown up to be one and a very unusual one at that.

She is Mary Maciel, medical artist for the department of surgery at the Cincinnati General hospital and the college of medicine of the University of Cincinnati. She is the only person in her particular field in Cincinnati and one of 100 in the United States.

Her task is to watch operations make sketches in the operating room and then transform them into delicate detailed drawings or paintings. The drawings are published in medical magazines and text books or made into lantern slides for lectures.

Drawings rather than photographs are used in this work because, Miss Maciel said, if an operation was photographed, hands, scissors, forceps etc., would be in the way and make it practically impossible to see the procedure.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—These tempestuous days on Capitol hill are bringing back the "old grade" in both houses of congress. Almost any day one can look down from the galleries and be reminded of class reunion day.

Especially is this true in the senate. Whether it's because they recall the days when they too had occasion to say, "Mr. President," or because they don't have to say it now, they're back. And incidentally, most of them are having a great time.

For example: Tom Heflin of Alabama may be seen on the senate floor. His summer sartorial equipment is probably more resplendent than ever. And sitting senators bear witness to the fact the stories he is telling in the cloakrooms are "up to snuff."

Brookhart of Iowa, himself quite a show in the senate a few years ago, may be found around almost any time.

A Hermit Emerges

Former Senator Fess of Ohio, who has secluded himself in a book at the Library of Congress to do research work since Vice Denham took his senate seat away from him, has closed up shop to come across "the hill" and watch the show. He has told his friends he might not return to his cloakroom until congress is adjourned.

The former Vice President, Charles Curtis, is in and out frequently and incidentally, depicting the lack of order his successor keeps in the senate. (The former V. P. was famously known as "the only senator who has never been in the senate.")

They all are enjoying themselves, apparently. They may have great ambitions, but to talk with them on the subject is to elicit actually nothing.

Most of them, however, will make this observation without hesitancy: "This congress beats anything we ever experienced in our careers. It's not over yet. We're eager to see what actually will happen before that familiar phrase 'the end of the world' falls from the lips of Jay Byrnes and Jack Garner."

Talks to parents

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Mrs. X was writing letters with three-year-old Betty in the room. Presently the child grew bored with inaction and climbing on the piano stool began to improvise. Mrs. X paid no attention to her for a few moments, but as the noise grew louder made a half-hearted protest. "Don't make that noise, dear." Later, as the playing continued unabated, she remarked again, still not looking up from her writing, "Betty, I told you to stop." Then she either gave up the struggle or became absorbed in her letters so that the noise ceased to disturb her. Betty played on vigorously without further interference.

One cannot train a child with only part of one's attention. Mrs. X would have been wiser to say nothing or to divert her entire attention away from her writing until she had seen that Betty did what she was told.

The child knew from her mother's first words that a little persistence on her part would overcome her mother's absent-minded protest.

The tiniest child senses at once whether his audience is attentive or not. A baby scarcely out of the toddler stage will pull at his mother's dress or reach up and turn her face in his direction if he feels that only part of her attention is his, even though she may be smiling and saying "yes, yes," to his demands at the moment.

It is best either to ignore a child entirely or to stop whatever one is doing until his case is attended to. If it is doing something which it should not do, the mischief must either not be seen or stopped with decision. Sometimes it is well not to see everything, but the child must not guess that the oversight is deliberate. Training children is a full time job, and only when they are out of sight can they be even momentarily put out of mind.

The Garden

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
 "MY paw is all well now," announced Rip. "I want to do some work."

"Let's get at the garden," said Willy Nilly.

It was in very bad shape. It needed weeding and watering. At once the "Puddle Muddlers set to work and with each of them working hard it was a changed garden by the end of the day. They tidied up Willy Nilly's place, too.

Jelly and Honey Bear each took hold of the rug and shook them hard. Willy Nilly swept and mopped. Toward evening they gathered some vegetables they had found in the garden and Mrs. Quacko Duck arranged them neatly on Willy Nilly's pantry shelves.

"Now," said Rip, "you'll have to attend to your ears, Willy Nilly. I've ripped things up once more. And while I think you're quite perfect I know you want to have them fixed."

"Do you know," said Willy Nilly, "I only thought of them once all the time you were gone? That was when I went to the newspaper office with the advertisement. I was afraid they would laugh at me—not because I minded that but because I feared they might think I was too odd to notice."

"But they were as kind as could be to me. They were the only time I thought of them."

"I showed how I worried you by being away," said Rip.

"We won't speak of it again," said Willy Nilly. "You're home and you'll always wear your collar when you go off on any more trips."

"I'll always do that," agreed Rip, "but I won't travel for a while!"

Men Without Cars

Men without cars are not uncommon among the natives of Guatemala engaged in gathering chicle, the basic ingredient of chewing gum. The loss of cars is the result of a disease which is being studied under the auspices of the Carnegie Institution of Washington—the great peculiarity of which is that it seems entirely confined to men actually engaged in chicle gathering.

It never appears in towns or among the women and children who accompany the men to the forest camps. It occurs early during the rainy season, according to a Carnegie Institution investigator, who, unable to find the source of the disease, believes that some jungle animal must act as a reservoir for the disease and that it is transmitted to men by insects.

Funny Times Turn Tricks
 Port Williams, thriving harbor town in Nova Scotia's famed Annapolis valley, is a seaport for only a part of each day. For the rest of the time, the port is just a busy town on an inland creek.

Port Williams is located on a stream or shallow that the pilot of an outboard motor boat would have to use care to avoid striking its propeller. Yet thousands of steamers dock there. The tiny stream is swelled into a 40-foot deep river when the Bay of Fundy rises from its lowest tides.

Coastal freighters come in with the ebb so unaided currents. They are equipped with specially constructed bottoms and when the tide goes out they rest on the river bed while being loaded with supplies, putting in new again when the tide comes in once more.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JACOBSON

New York, July 27 (AP).—The steel and motor stepped up today's brief stock market session and a number of specialties kept them company.

There was some moderate profit taking of the usual week-end variety, but this was absorbed with few casualties. The close was fairly firm. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

Trading was quite active during the opening, with blocks of several thousand shares changing hands. The volume dwindled later, although the majority of prices pointed higher.

Chrysler shares got up 2 points to another new high for the year and new tops, with gains of fractions to around 2 points or more, were registered by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Case, Montgomery Ward, National Steel, and General Electric.

Other advances of as much were shown by Allied Chemical, International Harvester, General Motors, Westinghouse, American Telephone, Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. A loss of a point was suffered by Continental Can and American Can was off half this amount.

Police Arrested 14 Auto Drivers in City

Arrests Were Made for Speeding, Passing Stop Signs and Parking in Restricted Areas—Several Cases Adjudged and Others Were Disposed of.

Friday the members of the police department made 14 arrests for various traffic violations in the city, and the cases were brought to the attention of Judge Culliton in police court this morning.

Last night the police department received a complaint that cars were parked in the center of Field Court. The police responded to the call and arrested four auto drivers who were charged with parking their cars in the center of that street. Two of the drivers had their hearings set down for Monday and two appeared in court and were fined $1 each. The two who were fined were William O. Rosenfeldt of New Paltz and Isidor Goldman of 24 Broadway. The two who had their hearings adjourned were Charles DeCret of 16 Josephine avenue and Jacob H. Rogers of Saugerties.

Judge Culliton said that at the request of the fire department the police were cooperating in attempting to eliminate the parking of cars in the center of the street on Field Court.

Joseph E. Price, a newspaper reporter of New York, arrested for speeding 40 miles an hour on Albany avenue, was fined $5. Edna Martini of 44 Van Deusen avenue, arrested for speeding, was fined $5.

Marie E. Zimmerman of New Brunswick, N. J., arrested for speeding 40 miles an hour on Albany avenue, forfeited $10 cash bail by failure to appear in court. Walter S. Platt of Ridgewood, N. J., speeding 42 miles an hour on Albany avenue, also forfeited $10 cash bail.

Austin Simmons of 157 Green street, arrested on a charge of parking his car more than 6 inches from the curb on Fair street, had his hearing set down for Monday.

Frank J. Siegel of 136 Clinton avenue, charged with passing a stop sign, had his hearing set down for Monday. Robert K. Hancock and the Rev. Paul M. Young were fined $2 each for passing a stop sign. Winfield Benoit of the Boulevard and Richard Vellmring of Poughkeepsie, were each fined $2 for passing stop signs.

Smith had been employed for several weeks by Max Goldstein of Dairyland and previous to that by Chandler Young at Napanoch. According to the officer he is charged with having taken a check given to him by Young, amounting to $4.50 and raised it to $40.50, after which he cashed it in a Napanoch place of business. He is also charged with having taken a check given to him by Goldstein and making two duplicate checks, one of which, it is said, was cashed, but the other was refused when an attempt was made to cash it.

Borrows Bagdad Idea

Senator Holt Mingles With the Populace

Rush D. Holt—"baby senator"—listens in at the cracker barrel.

Washington (AP).—Like Harun-Al-Raschid, who hovered in disguise around the market places at Bagdad to learn how the people liked his administration as caliph, Senator Rush D. Holt has a hankering for straight-from-the-shoulder comments.

He has just finished 5,000 miles of ambling about the country talking to people, most of the time without benefit of introduction, because he wanted to hear them express their opinions honestly.

They did, even about Senator Holt.

Once he stopped in a country store in Kansas to buy a package of gum, not because we wanted the gum, but it was a good excuse to go in and talk with the cracker barrel crowd.

He was making a speech in the next town that night, so he opened with, "I hear young Holt is talking tonight."

He knew him.

"Say, he's crazy!" announced the store-keeper.

"On the contrary," said Holt solemnly, "I think you should hear him."

Country Doctor's Dream, Sea-Fishing 'Rodeo,' Lures Sportsmen To Rio Grande

Port Isabel, Tex. (AP).—Anglers who like 'em big and tough and thrill to a singing line are turning their eyes again to the Lower Rio Grande valley of Texas for the second annual fishing rodeo, August 23-25.

The idea of a fishing rodeo, originated by Dr. J. A. Hockaday of Port Isabel, a country doctor who loves the outdoors, brought 207 contestants here last year.

Sportsmen from points as far away as Chicago are expected here for the contest this year, with a silver tarpon trophy and hundreds of other prizes at stake.

Shreveporter '34 Champ

Dr. I. Henry Smith of Shreveport, La., won the championship last year, nosing out his fellow-townsmen, D. M. Lide, when he landed a six-foot, seven-inch tarpon after an hour's battle that extended to within only a few minutes of the closing gun.

Lide and her son, Bobby, proved the right of the Lide family to a claim of fishing ability, however, the former winning the women's championship and the latter finishing first in the juvenile class.

Most sportsmen were not aware of the game fishing possibilities in the waters close at hand until Dr. Hockaday, tall, gangling Missourian who could easily pass for a native Texan, "showed 'em."

With no experience and poor equipment, the sportsman-doctor took up tarpon fishing with a zest. Skinned knuckles and sore muscles were more numerous than tarpon brought to gaff, but persistence won and others became interested.

In contrast to conditions today the lower Rio Grande valley which Hockaday first knew was a typical Texas frontier. A "six-gun" was considered a necessary clothing accessory. Politics was a seething, bitter game.

Dr. Hockaday became embroiled, refusing to join the machine which directed the controlled Mexican rote. Following one uprising, while going to the aid of a Port Isabel citizen who was fatally wounded, the young doctor was shot in the abdomen. A grand jury investigation followed and Texas rangers put the old machine out of power.

Saltish Count the Most

"In a fishing boat or a hunters' camp, one learns the real truth about a man," Dr. Hockaday says. "It is different from the casual acquaintance of business life."

"I have never had a desire for wealth at the expense of personal pleasure," he declares. "No one 42 years old has had more fun than I have. That is what prompted my choice of the life of a country physician, in preference to that of a city specialist."

A quest for saltish is expected to furnish one of the new angles of this year's rodeo. This elusive fish breeds them the same. Burgevin and Kushner were battlers for Tarpon and Gerry and Crans for the Black Park team.

Pea Soup Fog Meets Its Master In New Airplane Radio Compass

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH.

(Associated Press Science Writer)

Washington, (AP).—Visibility zero . . . fog hangs thick as pea soup over the airport . . . a plane roars overhead . . . flying blind . . . does a figure-8 . . . drops through the fog and lands smoothly on the runway.

That soon will be the story around most American airports on foggy days. It will be due largely to the work of G. C. Kruess, inventor of the radio compass, and to Captain Albert F. Hegenberger, recent recipient of the Collier trophy. Hegenberger adapted the compass to make blind flying and landing almost as simple as driving the family auto into a two-car garage.

Will Install 20.

The bureau of air commerce is preparing to install 20 of these directional radio devices at principal airports. Test installations now are being made at Washington and Newark, N. J. Eighteen others will be set up along the mid-continent airway from Los Angeles to New York.

With the Kruess radio compass, a pilot becomes independent of the narrow band of the radio range beacon which most commercial planes follow at present in cross-country flights. All he has to do is tune in on any radio transmitter, even a commercial broadcasting station, then turn the plane until the dashboard points to zero and hold it there.

To Captain Hegenberger and the Army Air Corps was left the job of adapting this device to make blind landings safe in practically any weather. To test it, he made the first solo take-off, flight, and landing with his cockpit completely covered at Wright Field, Dayton, O., on May 9, 1932, and since has made thousands of similar landings without so much as blowing out a tire.

Those are the places in which people dawdle and gossip about politics," says Holt. "I'd rather hear them than the people I meet where I make speeches. Few people are quite honest when they're talking to a senator who is their guest for the evening."

St. Peter's Cathedral

World's Largest Church. The average church might possibly accommodate 1,000 persons; St. Peter's, Rome, has a holding capacity of 54,000. This magnificent cathedral, the largest in the world, cost approximately $10,000,000 to build, including all the additions in the Seventeenth century. The main construction work extended over a period of 178 years, 1450 to 1626.

The present church, says Tit-Bits Magazine, stands on the site where Calixtus Caligula built a circus in the First century; it was used by Nero for spectacles, including the martyrdom of the Christians. The exact spot on which St. Peter was crucified has been preserved throughout the centuries and in the cathedral today is marked by an altar.

The simple sanctuary of St. Peter gave place under Constantine the Great to a magnificent basilica in A. D. 324. Twelve years later the church had decayed so much that a plan was conceived to level the old and erect a new one. The original plans for the new building were drawn by Bramante, and later modified by Michelangelo and others. The following are measurements of the cathedral as it now stands: Nave, 151 feet; width at entrance, 90 feet; length of transept, 451 feet; entire length of basilica, including vestibule, 603 feet; height from pavement of church to summit of cross on lantern, 434 feet; surface area, 163,182 square feet.

One of the show places of Washington, and considered by foremost authorities the "most artistic building in the world," is the Folger Shakespeare Library. It is unsurpassed in its collection of material relating to Shakespeare and his writings, says the Washington Star, containing the discriminating results of a life time of study and collection by Henry Clay Folger, scholar and philanthropist. It contains also, an almost exact replica of the Globe theater of London, wherein were shown the poet's masterpieces during his lifetime.

Swimming Bladder in Fish. A swimming bladder is an air bladder or sac which branches out from the intestine of the embryo fish. From the lower to the higher orders of fishes the nature and function of this air bladder vary considerably. In general, it is believed to serve a hydrostatic function in the lower orders and a respiratory function in the higher. Generally it is single, or unpaired in form.

Deportation. American-born citizens cannot be deported, but there are cases on record of the deportation of naturalized citizens. In these cases the action is taken only after a court trial. Absence, of course, can be deported for certain crimes, illegal entry, anarchistic endeavors or if it can be shown within five years after arrival that the alien became public charges from causes existing prior to arrival.

ANOTHER GREAT ICE AGE MAY BE ON WAY

If It Happens It Will Be in Distant Future.

Boston.—Another great ice age may be on its way, similar to that of more than half a million years ago when a frigid glacier sheet slid over Europe and the American continent, but don't be alarmed, if it happens it will be in the distant future.

This was the assertion of Dr. Harlan T. Stetson, Harvard astronomer, in a radio address in which he discussed the effect of the western dust storms upon solar radiation. Dust storms and volcanic eruptions might even help to bring about a new ice age, he said.

It was Doctor Stetson who a few years ago revealed the results of his study of more than 5,000 earthquakes, and the finding that the gravitational pull of the moon was responsible for practically all the deep-seated quakes, including the one in India last May which took thousands of lives.

Doctor Stetson pointed out that during the great ice age, our sun and the planets were at a spot in space which now appears through telescopes as a large black patch like a horse's head, in the constellation of Orion. Since then, the sun has been speeding away from that point at the rate of 400,000,000 miles a year.

Doctor Stetson said: "Perhaps back in those dim days of geologic history, when the giant ice sheet slid over Europe and the American continent, the sun and earth were enveloped in a cosmic dust cloud so dense that the particles screened off the sun's heat to a disastrous degree, lowering our temperate climates to below the freezing point the year round. Who knows but that in some distant future day the sun may again penetrate one of these cosmic clouds of dust, and the earth fall in temperature until civilization will migrate into the tropics in order to continue its existence."

Fish Are Used to Clear Lake of Mass of Weeds

Pelting.—The center of the campus of Yenching university, American mission supported institution near Peking, is a shallow ornamental lake. Some time ago it was noticed that this lake was rapidly becoming choked with weeds. Ornamental qualities were greatly reduced, and freshmen raised objections to being thrown into the weedy waters.

Faced with the problem, the business department purchased a large number of "grass fish." These fish, true to their name, are vegetarians, spurning worms, flies, and small fry when they can browse off succulent seaweed or nibble at grass hanging in the water. Like other grazing animals, "grass fish" have prodigious appetites and multiply rapidly. Within a surprisingly short period the lake was cleared of weeds.

Results of Kansas Quiz

Pain Heirs of Old West. Dodge City, Kan.—The human West has come upon bad times. In the parlance of the day when quick shooting solved disputes and "necktie parties" made court districts unnecessary "the grass roots have gone loco." The grandchildren of some of the straight-shooting personages who made Front street a lively place are traitors to tradition.

A general information quiz was held the other day and "quick on the draw" was defined as ability to sketch rapidly. The historical society whose membership includes the blood line of those roisters of the short grass who enjoyed sending bullets through plug hats has taken this lapse to heart and will publish a glossary of frontier colloquialisms.

Two years ago Bowen decided to retire and with the approval of the state banking department started liquidating the bank. All creditors were paid in full.

Meyer Srolowitz, 15, of 140 Goerck street, New York, was drowned while bathing in the mill pond at the Five Points, Ellenville, Friday forenoon.

According to reports Srolowitz, with three companions named Lubershefsky, Greenbaum and Kares, had come down from what was formerly known as the Godey Farm, just north of Ellenville, a party of 20, from a Jewish seminary in New York city being on a vacation at the farm. Srolowitz went down in some eight or ten feet of water near the gate house at the pond, and it is said to have been a quarter of an hour or so before help was summoned. When help finally arrived, a boat was secured and grappling hooks used, but the body was not recovered until the pond had been drawn down several feet, when a young lad, son of Harry Nesbitt of Ellenville, found the body and it was brought to shore. A pulmonologist from the fire department was in attempts to resuscitate the boy, but without avail.

HOLLYWOOD HOT WEATHER HINT

At The Theatres

Today
Broadway: "Doubting Thomas." Will Rogers, a successful combination of actor, radio star, columnist, sage, airplane enthusiast and staunch Democrat, scratches his head and throws off numerous quips during the progress of his latest movie, and strengthened by an excellent cast of supporting players plus the able direction of David Butler, this show is alive with gaiety, satire, romance and laughter. It tells of a wife who falls under the spell of the stage and of a husband who does his best to avert disaster. Mr. Rogers was never more at ease before a camera than in this show, and some of his lines are exceptionally good. The skill of Billie Burke, Allison Skipworth, Sterling Holloway, Frances Grant and Gail Patrick adds much to the play's success. Amusing and well done entertainment.
Orpheum: "It's a Small World." Spencer Tracy and Wendy Barrie are to be seen in the opening attraction, a loose jointed tale of a madcap girl who gets her own way until she gets in the way of a certain man. There are a few bright comedy moments and Miss Barrie seems well on the road to stardom. "Law Beyond the Range" is the latest venture of Tim McCoy and is another sample of bravery under fire.
Kingston: "Alias Mary Dow" and "Men of the Hour." The first feature sparkles with good dialogue, tense situations and a remarkably fine characterization by Sally Eilers. In this one, she plays the part of a poor girl who knows all the answers. Sudden fame and riches are hers when she impersonates the kidnapped daughter of a millionaire. The action travels at express train speed and Ray Milland, as her leading man, gives his finest screen performance to date. "Men of the Hour" is a Columbia release with Dick Cromwell, Wallace Ford and Billie Seward. Directed by Lambert Hillier, it makes the most of a negligible plot.

Tomorrow
Broadway: Same.
Orpheum: "Kentucky Blue Streak." A racing yarn with some interesting camera angles is to be seen in the Orpheum Sunday feature, a story that offers Patricia Scott, Eddie Nugent and Junior Coghlan. The race track scenes are competently done, there is a general atmosphere of excitement, and the climax is in the tradition of all race horse stories. "The Three Musketeers," the serial feature that has been showing at the Orpheum for some time, continues with another spine-chilling episode. John Wayne heads the cast of players.
Kingston: "Alibi Ike." Some time ago, the famous Ring Lardner created a fiction character that brought out the frailty in man's makeup. It was done in a humorous and satirical vein, and this character became beloved for his failings. To transmute such an individual to the screen without losing his personality was seemingly impossible. But it has been done nevertheless, and "Alibi Ike" becomes one of the screen's most enjoyable achievements with Joe E. Brown outdoing himself in the title role. It is Mr. Brown's best comedy venture, with sparkling lines and laugh getting situations, as it tells of a hall player, a good one too, who has an alibi for everything he does or says. Win, lose or draw, Alibi Ike must expand on his performances, whether on the ball field or off. Through the genius of Ring Lardner, Alibi Ike becomes almost a symbol of human failings, made the more understandable through the pleasurable method of laughter. Grand entertainment. Don't miss.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD — Summer is always open season for studio-visiting tourists, but this year the guides are being overworked because San Diego's exposition is attracting vacationists and Hollywood is just a step north, a hundred miles or so.
The usual "No Visitors" signs still hang, but those who come with letters of introduction, those who have an "in" of one sort or another, must be turned over to the guides for a tour of the lot. Comparatively few tourists care to see how soap is made, or shoes, or vinegar, but practically everybody wants to go through a movie factory.

Scenes-In-Making Scarce

Once inside the gates, the visitor's aim is not fulfilled completely until he has been on a set and seen a scene in the making. Even if he has entered the sound-proofed stables, the chances are that he will arrive when the actors are not working, when necessary business of arranging set or lights or props is in progress.

He may be ushered in to see "Dr. Societies" at work and stand on the sidelines watching. Paul Muni conferring with his director but not acting. Or he may mingle with the "atmosphere" in the old west saloon of "Home of the Ranch" for half an hour, during which there is a lot of starring by prop men and electricians but none by Gladys Swarthout or Willie Howard or John Boles. He may marvel at the reproduction of an ocean liner which is being used for Francis Lederer's "The Gay Decepcion" and see the "passengers" waiting around, playing bridge, chatting or knitting. He may find the preparations for movie-making interesting. But unless he waits a while he will not see "a scene in the making."

That's How

Of course, he may arrive on the set at the perfect moment—just before the call for "Quiet, everybody!" is sounded. This is the tourist's dream come true. Here is James Dunn in "Bad Boy." The scene is a grocery and meat market. Dunn is supposed to be abstractedly ordering meat while gazing entranced past the camera at Dorothy Wilson, who is not there at all but over in a corner studying her lines. It is an amusing scene. Women marketers paring with the butcher.
The first "take" is spoiled when a bit-player thinks the scene is done and laughs out loud. Everybody takes it good humoredly. The second scene when Dunn gets his lines twisted. Everybody smiles. The third scene, except that the baby, just off-scene, begins to cry loudly.
"So that's how they make pictures," the visitor beams.

Home Institute REFRIGERATOR RECIPES

POPULAR DESSERT FOR LAGGING APPETITE

Yes, even now, in midsummer, pie is the great favorite. Here's one—luscious cream-topped chocolate filling in a flaky crust that comes straight from—the refrigerator.

Serve with frosty orange squash. Ah...! what a perfect ending for a summer meal!

Chocolate Refrigerator Pie.

- 1 tablespoon gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 cup boiling water
- 2 squares (ounces) unsweetened chocolate.
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Previously baked pastry shell
- Whipped cream

Soften gelatin in cold water. Cook chocolate and boiling water together until smooth, using double boiler; add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Now add beaten egg yolks, half the sugar, and the salt and vanilla. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in (using a wooden spoon) the stiffly beaten egg whites, into which remaining sugar has been beaten. Turn into a baked pastry shell and chill thoroughly. Just before serving spread, or pipe on, a generous quantity of whipped cream over the surface of the pie. Incidentally, your pastry shell will be nicer and less likely to break if you build up the edges with a half-inch of pastry.

For the sparkling Orange Squash you need only glasses half filled with cracked ice, juice of one large orange for each person, and sparkling water. Garnish with orange slices and sprigs of mint. (Note: Chocolate pie and an orange drink make a grand flavor combination.)

Refrigerator Recipe Booklet.

There are literally dozens of marvelous recipes (for both automatic and ice-type refrigerators) in our Home Institute booklet, Favorite Refrigerator Recipes. "My dear, how simply stunning!" This is the delightful impression you can create this summer with the crocheted toque and sweater that we picture. Made from an exclusive Alice Brooks pattern, they're not only charming; they're highly practical—specially designed for double-use wear. The attached scarf (that's now fastened softly about the neck) may be draped gracefully over the right shoulder—you can make the blouse without the scarf, too. And it will prove just as flattering with fall suits as it is now with white hat, skirt and shoes. Make the set of string or yarn—and do make it soon! It's so easy, it'll be done almost before you know it! This Alice Brooks pattern gives detailed instructions for both toque and blouse—explains stitches and tells just what materials to buy. Tropical Mats And Peasant Pottery Help Make Garden Dining Pleasant

Gaiety and sturdiness suit the terrace table

By MARGERY TAYLOR
(Copyright, 1935, by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman)

Interior decoration goes outside in the clever, delightful new accessories for dining in the garden or on the terrace. Gaiety and sturdiness are combined to soothe the temper and please the eye.

Place mats instead of blowing tablecloths, may be of waterproof fabric in bright stripes, washable and inexpensive. Newest and smartest are the tropical tale mats of woven straw, rattan or natural bamboo slats—charming with smoke-colored bubble glass and bright peasant pottery.

Centerpieces, non-topping, may be tight-massed flowers or leaves in low, heavy earthenware bowls, or stenciled blooms in flat glass trays. A delightful centerpiece without flowers is a copper tray with a wooden gallery heaped with metal-studded wooden fruit—perfect setting for woven mats, wooden dishes and maple and mahogany goblets.

Bright braided raffia mats, striped peasant pottery dishes and thick red glass goblets will make a stunning arrangement around a pewter bowl of Mexican pottery fruit and vegetables. Other effective centerpieces are a pottery bowl of coconut, pineapple tops and finger bananas flanked by carved wooden birds—or a small gold-fish aquarium surrounded by sea-green glass blocks.

Candlelight charm for an outdoor evening meal is possible with large hurricane globes or painted tin or brass candlesticks with glass tops. Clever nuisance-chasing gadgets include a wicker bread basket with red pottery lining and ebrium top which keeps rolls warm, bright enameled thermos carafes, deep breeze-defying ashtrays.

Over all, if you have no shady tree, you will be grateful for the new garden canopy, with adjustable awning, which can be wheeled anywhere.

Capes Cover Smart Shoulders Cooler Than Sleeves and So Chic

By BARBARA BELL

All the world is cooling off in capes. No summer scene is complete without them—they're smart anywhere, any time. Some so short they just top the shoulders; others so long they swing dramatically to one's toes. You'll need these and more to finish out the warm weather season—and a brand-new wrist-length type to match your first fall frock. That's how important capes are!

Prime favorites are the capes with a sporting purpose. These, for instance:

The cape that tops off a tennis frock. Stopping at elbow length, this is infinitely cooler than a jacket and it serves the same purpose of concealing a sun-tanned back from the world when its owner is not in action. A grand spectator costume is the strap-back frock and cape of fine wale white pique, the cape cut with a little girl collar and tied under the chin with a bow of navy and white polka-dot crepe. It's smart to wear a belt and a band in your hair of the same dark contrast.

The beach cape. Something not to be missed, for this is cut full and circular to serve as a beach rug when not shielding the shoulders from the sun. Very swank ones are of terry cloth lined with taffeta. Others are of jersey in two colors to complement your bathing suit. If you're a two-piece girl, have a reversible cape with one side to match one outfit, and the other to match the second. We've seen nice ones in printed seersucker and vivid glazed chiniz lined with white terry cloth to accompany dressmaker swim suits in these fabrics.

Capes have made an impressive showing in town. They swing briskly to the office on swifter days, they lunch at smart spots, dine at roof terraces and sidewalk cafes, dance in staid ballrooms high above the city. These are the ones you will see repeatedly:

The cape-collared frock. For street wear it follows the ever important rule of dark colors with a splash of white, and one notes quantities of simple navy, brown and blue linen dresses with crisp white linen cape collars, often snapped to the neckline so that they are readily detachable for laundering. Dark printed chiffons and voiles with ruffled cape collars, quite deep, are another idea which has met with sympathy. The collar, which curves gracefully over the front and shoulders but does not extend across the back, is new and prevents the dimpled look which occurs when a deep collar in a sheer fabric is blown away by a casual breeze.

Short pleated capes have triumphed in town. The smartest are those that tie in a saucy bow under the chin. In dark heavy sheers, they top a matching frock which introduces pleating in its trimming or in a flounce at the hem. These look cool and crisp in black or brown cable net, which is the wide mesh kind. White linen or white pique capes, quite short, give a cooling touch to a dark crepe street dress, particularly when accompanied by white accessories. Hip-length capes with tuxedo revers in white are new. So are double-tiered capes of taffeta to match a printed taffeta frock.

Your evening wardrobe deserves at least one cape, and more, if you can manage it. Let it be very brief and demure and Victorian, a mass of frothy ruffles, or a floating chiffon drape attached to your shoulder straps. Let it be very frivolous or so practical you can wear it for daytime, too. Let it be part of your dress, or a separate wrap that will be just as chic next season as now.

A foamy net evening frock is at its best with a cape. One romantic gown seen at smart places is in black net over black taffeta. The cape is three-tiered and curves down to the waist in back, each tier edged with white rick rack braid, just like the ruffles on the billowy skirt.

Fluffy net frocks with capes in bonbon pastels are a fashion approved by the younger set. You will want these in sugary pinks, blues and yellows. The capes just cover the shoulders and are edged with ruffles to match the skirts, which are very full and gathered or shirred at the waist.

Chiffon capes tied around the neck and swept to the back to form a train are a Paris idea with infinite dramatic possibilities. A soft blue over mauve chiffon dress, a deep purple gown, or a rich wine over pale green—no mention of a title of aristocracy.

Short capes made entirely of bright chiffon or net flowers are perfect over a pure white frock. These are, of course, in vogue, too. Just as chic and much more desirable from a practical standpoint are the hip-length quilted taffeta capes in vivid colors and creamy pastels. Some of these fasten all the way down the front with matching frogs for a crisp military effect. Changeable taffeta capes, tucked or corded at the edges, shine at night over matching or sharply contrasting frocks.

Also influenced by the military are the heavy white satin capes lined with ribbed tulle or tulle in front. One noted at a recent style show swung open from the neck line to reveal a flame colored lining matching the crepe frock with which it was worn. A single flame flower accented the neckline.

Washable velveteen capes in pastels and dark shades look charming with crepe or satin frocks. With cotton dresses, one occasionally sees a very full flare-back white linen or pique cape, usually little more than an amusing big collar.

Plan and Grow Your Border

Hardy borders are now as much a part of the furnishings of a home as the garage, the fence, or the clothes poles. They are a sign of permanence, an institution of beauty appearing each year. They may be simple, composed of only a few varieties of plants. They may be narrow, only 3 or 4 feet wide, or they may be elaborate, 10 to 15 feet wide and employing a great variety of plants and a carefully thought-out color scheme.

The most interesting border is the one that you grow and plan yourself. The great majority of the perennials can be raised in quantity from seeds. A few perennials, such as iris, peonies, named perennial phloxes, delphiniums and others, must be bought as plants if a particular variety is desired. Named plants were originally raised from seed, however, and the finest seedlings were selected as worth perpetuating and naming.

The best way to secure a high standard of plants for the hardy border is to raise a large quantity of seedlings in rows like vegetables until they bloom and then select the best types and colors for permanent occupants of the border. This should be done wherever space permits.

Delphiniums, verithrums and perennial poppies have many inferior types among seedlings which should be discarded. However, all of them make good displays and it is only the advanced gardener who will be particular in his selection. It pays in the long run.

PLAQUE OF DIAMONDS ON BACK OF DECOLLETE.

Paris (P)—A plaque of emerald held the straps of the back decollete of a black satin evening gown which Princess Jean Louis de Faucigny-Lucinge wore at a recent soiree. The gown, designed by Helena, on look sinuous lines, was caught at the front of the decollete with a diamond brooch.

Medici collars "in" London (P)—Turtleneck collars are the "Medici" style. The "Queen girl," "Turtleneck" and "Medici" styles.

Smart Hot Weather Frock Strikes Autumn Style Note

Trained satin makes this smart hot weather frock which incorporates fall style notes. The flaring satin train is trained in several shades of green, the black neck and bodice have a deep green. There is a narrow band of black lace at the waist with a row of green and a green and black band. The gown is made of a shimmering and dainty. The round-neck, black bodice is trimmed with black

Pool Gardens Gaining Favor

Ithaca, N. Y., July 27—Rock gardens have probably reached their peak of popularity, and some other form of gardening may soon receive popular interest," says Professor J. P. Porter of the New York State college of agriculture.

"Undoubtedly," he avers, "the use of water in the garden will take its place. This rise in popularity has already begun, judging by the increased attention now given to the production of aquatic and semi-aquatic plants, of fish, and of other water creatures. Large and prosperous establishments are now producing water garden supplies at prices within the reach of all.

"Beautiful water displays and aquatic gardens can be developed in anyone's yard at very little expense. This fact becomes more generally known, an increasing demand for water garden developments will be noted.

"Water is used for its own value as a garden ornament, and because it has the power to reflect, it doubles its value. Interesting little falls, cascades, brooks, or pools may be built. Along the water's shore, semi-aquatic plants may grow, and on its surface, lilies, lotus, and water plants may bloom.

"In addition, living creatures may inhabit the garden. Birds play and bathe in the shallow water; tadpoles, newts, and snails of many colors keep the water pure and clean. Many kinds of fish are available to eat 'wigglers,' or mosquito larvae, and thus check any possible danger of mosquitoes."

SUMMER GARDEN TASKS DEMAND YOUR ATTENTION

Cultivating, weeding and thinning out are the biggest tasks in the garden at this time of the year. There are still some plants in, of course, if you were late in starting, and there is some succession planting to be done, but for the most part keep yourself busy making a clean job of your garden.

Thinning out vegetables and annual flowers is important, and should be done thoroughly. Now plants require considerable space in which to

Trees Respond to Feeding This Season

By THE MASTER GARDENER.

If trees could speak they would probably tell many of us how grossly unjust we are to them when we place them under unfavorable growing conditions, remove the food nature provides, and fail to replace the natural food supply.

Soils around city homes are much poorer than those found in forests.

And trees in cities are robbed of their natural food when fallen leaves are removed from beneath them. Other conditions in cities are unfavorable to their growth: smoky air, poisonous gases, competition with grass and other plants for food and water. Often the ground area from which they must draw food and moisture is partially covered with pavement. Considering these conditions, it is not surprising that most city trees are poor specimens.

Many of these conditions cannot be remedied, but it is possible to supply trees all the food elements they need for healthy, luxuriant growth by regular feeding with complete, balanced plantfood. Well-fed trees will thrive even under these unfavorable conditions.

Complete plantfood may be secured from your dealer in lawn and garden supplies. A pound of plantfood to each inch of circumference of the trunk of the tree is generally a good application. Feed your hungry trees now and you will be surprised how they respond.

PARISIENNE PUTS FEATHERS IN HER HAIR

Longchamp, France (P)—Yvonne Vallee, former wife of Maurice Chevalier, wore "dusky pink" feathers thrust at intervals in her black hair at the night racing meet here. The feathers matched the slippers which she wore with a blue violet cape frock trimmed in "dusky pink." A big cape of silver foxes completed her costume.

A. suggesting a survey of city be made to determine the educational needs. A communication was received from Mayor Heiselein, also relative to a city school survey.

A resolution was adopted that "the superintendent secure from the State Education Department whatever information and aid it may be able to give."

April 2, 1935—Superintendent met the officials of the Department in Albany and discussed items to be considered for a survey to be made by the local school authorities, and a "plant survey" (buildings) to be made at a future date by the State Education Department.

April 20, 1935—Board of Education by resolution authorized superintendent to make necessary survey suggested by the Department.

May 8, 1935—Dr. J. H. Hixson, Director, Dr. William Wilson and Mr. G. D. Coons, consulting architect, accompanied by a stenographer, spent the entire day making "plant survey" of the nine school buildings.

Copy of all the above was sent to the State Department.

July 18, 1935—Superintendent called to Albany for conference in reviewing and discussing the survey materials.

July 28, 1935—Dr. William Wilson of the Department met with Board of Education. There was discussion of many phases of local conditions—crowded conditions in High School and grammar schools, ways of meeting the problems by Junior High School non-resident attendance, etc.

Dr. Wilson was asked to come again for another conference.

July 18, 1935—Meeting of Board and Dr. Wilson for the entire evening. There was further discussion of ways and means of meeting the educational problems confronting the Board of Education.

In answer to questions, Dr. Wilson suggested method of procedure along the following general lines:

1. Determination of method of solving the congestion problems, i. e. by Junior High School or some other way.

2. If Junior High School is the solution, shall there be one or two buildings.

3. This should be followed by determination of possible sites.

4. Making of sufficiently specific plans to determine the approximate cost of the project.

5. Submission of the project at the earliest possible date to the Federal Works Administration for approval and a grant of 45 per cent of total cost.

Respectfully submitted, B. C. VAN INGEN, Superintendent of Schools Kingston, N. Y., July 26, 1935.

Matter Up to Board

Trustees Kearney and Schmid stated when the conference had been held with Dr. Wilson the question has been asked as to what the department proposed to do and from the answer they said they understood that the matter was to be left up to the board. Trustee Craig said that his understanding was that no recommendation of a particular plan would be made but that with the facts before it the board was expected to take some course. Trustee Schmid said that this had been his understanding and that Dr. Wilson had avoided expressing an opinion as to what course the board should take when he was asked what course he recommended. As to the cost the state department expressed no definite opinion but gave a vague idea that the cost would be from $400 to $450 per student.

At this point Trustee Katz made the suggestion that since the building committee had been in conference with the state department and also architects and had an idea of costs, that this committee bring to some concrete recommendation for the board to base its opinion on; and act. Wherein this was for one or two junior high schools he said the committee probably knew best.

Trustee Kearney said that the committee had already made a recommendation which was before the board and was under consideration. That had been for two buildings and he added, "That is our idea now."

President Beers said he disagreed and expressed an opinion that in addition to the high school building would take care of the surplus students or even the addition of an

Queens of the Screen, Like Anna Held, Find That Milk and Feminine Beauty Go Together

Hollywood Stars Insist On Milk As Did Cleopatra and Sheba's Queen

IN the dear old days when hansom cabs flourished at every corner and Diamond Jim Brady was one of the sights of the town, one of the first and perhaps the most famous of all the Ziegfeld stars—Anna Held—had New York town buzzing, not merely because of her accent, not merely because she wore tight, but because she took milk baths.

At that, she was only following in the tradition of great beauties since time began. Cleopatra, according to the writers of history, bathed in milk. The Queen of Sheba bathed her soft feet in milk before she called on Solomon. The Anna Helds of today, the great stage and motion picture stars, have also found that milk is the great beautifier.

Not that they bathe in it, nothing so bizarre as that. They drink it. The great beauties of today have found a good friend in milk. Famous physicians are aware that milk is rich in calcium, and calcium brings beauty to the complexion. Milk is an energy giver and it adds sparkle and lustre to the eyes. The fear of every star is to lose her figure and these famous actresses have found that milk is a body builder which is not fattening.

Katharine Hepburn, for example, who sky-rocketed to fame in "Little Women," often drinks as much as a quart of milk a day. Bettina

Hall, star of "Anything Goes," is another one who relies upon milk as a builder-upper and Claudette Colbert, who was so fascinating as Poppaea, the wife of Nero, in Cecil De Mille's production "The Sign of the Cross" (where she proved the historians right by bathing in a sunken tub of milk) drinks at least a quart of milk a day. These bright stars rely on milk to keep them full of sparkle and to keep their figures trim.

$6,101.85 were ordered paid. In the item of bills paid was the bill of $3,616.13 for coal, all of which has been delivered. The finance committee was authorized to audit the August payroll since no meeting will be held in August.

Work During Summer.

The building committee reported work authorized during the summer recess almost completed.

The same committee reported that a grant from the WPA probably could be secured to remove rock at the rear of the high school and widen out the driveway and eliminate a hazard. Mr. Van Ingen reported he had measured the rock and found about 80 feet could be taken out. Mayor Heiselein had approved the plan and the city engineer had made an inspection and favored the project. The board authorized a further examination and the preparation of an estimate by the city engineer, and petitioned the mayor to make application for WPA funds to do the work. Since this project involves practically all labor and little cost for materials it is considered an ideal project.

The building committee was authorized to enter into a yearly contract with the International Business Machines Corporation for an annual inspection and maintenance of the electric clocks, bells and fire alarm system at the high school at an annual cost of $40.

William McLean was appointed janitor at No. 8 school to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Forbes. Mr. McLean has been acting.

The building committee also recommended that all janitors, the school mechanic, engineer and matron at the high school be re-employed at the same salaries, except for the annual increases as provided by law.

Adopted.

The president of the board was authorized to enter into a contract with the trustee of School District No. 8, town of Ulster, for tuition of pupils from that district who attend the city schools as provided under the charter.

The president and clerk were authorized to sign the annual, statistical reports and file them with the city clerk and the state department at Albany.

The matter of vacancies on the advisory board of the Part Time School was referred to the rules committee. The terms of E. E. Fessenden and Ivar Jungquist have expired.

An adjournment was taken to September 6.
